

Kraft Heinz Shareholder Meeting Question
Scott Shepard, Free Enterprise Project Coordinator
National Center for Public Policy Research, May 7, 2020

I'm Scott Shepard with the National Center for Public Policy Research.

Kraft Heinz is a donor to the Southern Poverty Law Center. While that organization once served a valuable role in the fight against racial division, it has since become a corruption-riddled and explicitly partisan outfit that labels as hate groups organizations with which it merely disagrees politically. In recent years many of its highest leaders have been fired, while its employees decry deep racism, hate and corruption within the organization itself. Will Kraft Heinz commit to reviewing, and upon review potentially severing, its relationship with this disgraced organization?
