

AT&T Shareholder Meeting Question
Scott Shepard, Free Enterprise Project Deputy Director
National Center for Public Policy Research, April 30, 2021

I'm Scott Shepard with the National Center for Public Policy Research.

In just the last few weeks, the nation has learned that AT&T's CNN pushed false narratives about Russians offering bounties for the deaths of American soldiers,¹ and about the cause of death of U.S. Capitol policeman Brian Sicknick,² yet CNN doubles down. A CNN director has revealed that the former news organization hyped and falsified news to keep viewers scared about COVID, to defeat Donald Trump, and to stir up racial division.³ What specific, concrete measures is AT&T going to take either to end the disgraceful malpractice and mendacity at CNN or, alternatively, to change its designation from news network to hard-left opinion megaphone?
